

A digital journey Train + Air to simplify your travels

Departure from 18 cities in France and to Brussels

Air Transat now offers its customers a combined air and train service that is completely digitalized, in partnership with the SNCF in France.

It lets passengers pair an Air Transat with railway travel so they can explore Canada.

It's one rate, one booking, no hassle. Plus, passengers benefit from a protection policy in case of a flight or train delay.

Steps of the trip towards Canada

Your customer downloads his e-ticket available 72 hours before the train departure from the website check-in.accesrail.com.

The ticket is also the day of the train's departure, on self-service terminals in stations.

Your customer arrives at the TGV station (TN) at terminal 2 at Paris-Charles de Gaulle airport.

They then proceed to terminal 3 of the airport.

They check in at the Air Transat counter to collect their boarding pass and drop off their luggage.

Check-in for Air Transat flights is also available 24 hours before departure, online, on the website or the application.

Advantages of the TGV AIR

Peace of mind: In case of a flight or train delay, seats are automatically confirmed on the next available flight or train (as the case may be).

Easy travel: It's one booking, one rate for air and railway travel combined. All changes to an itinerary can be processed in the same request.
